

Is it possible to arrange the numbers

$1, 2, \dots, 2009$

in a row so that each number, with the exception of the two end numbers, is either the sum or the absolute value of the difference of the two numbers to either side of it?