

A square is partitioned into rectangles with sides are parallel to the sides of the square. An example is shown below. For each rectangle we calculate the ratio of its shorter side to its longer side. Prove that the sum of these ratios is at least 1.

